AUTHENTIC ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

Thou art the ruler of the minds of all people,
Thou dispenser of India's destiny.
Thy name rouses the hearts of the Punjab, Sind,
Gujarat and Maratha, of Dravid, Orissa and Bengal.
It echoes in the hills of the Vindhya and Himalayas, mingles in the music of the Jamuna and Ganges and is chanted by the waves of the Indian Sea.
They pray for Thy blessings and sing Thy praise.
The saving of all people waits in Thy hand,
Thou dispenser of India's destiny.
Victory, Victory, Victory to Thee.

THE NATIONAL INTEGRATION PLEDGE

"I solemnly pledge to work with dedication to preserve and strengthen the freedom and integrity of the nation.

"I further affirm that I shall never resort to violence and that all differences and disputes relating to religion, language, region or other political or economic grievances should be settled by peaceful and constitutional means."

INVOCATION TO GODDESS TAMIL

Bharat is like the face beautiful of Earth clad in wavy seas:

Deccan is her brow crescent-like on which the fragrant 'Tilak' is the blessed Dravidian land,

Like the fragrance of that 'Tilak' plunging the world in joy supreme reigns Goddess Tamil with renown spread far and wide.

Praise unto You, Goddess Tamil, whose majestic youthfulness inspires awe and ecstasy.

NOTE TO THE TEACHER

The Reader has been written according to the current syllabus in English. Each lesson in the Reader introduces one or more structural items and some content words.

At the beginning of each lesson the new items have been listed. A few new structural words and phrases which are not listed in the syllabus are used in some of the lessons as incidental language for the sake of naturalness. They need not be taught in detail. It is enough if they are taught at the recognition level.

Each lesson in the Reader consists of two parts. Part I contains reading materials, mainly meant for developing the reading skills. Part II contains language exercises meant for consolidation and reinforcement of the items learnt, comprehension and composition. Besides these the Reader contains some poems. They are meant for appreciation and enjoyment. The Reader is thus a pupil's book.

There is a Teacher's Handbook accompanying this. It is designed to help the teacher make the maximum use of the Reader.

The following procedure is suggested for teaching the Reader Lessons:

- (a) Introduce new language items ORALLY first. Consult the Handbook for detailed suggestions.
- (b) Allow sufficient READING and WRITING PRACTICE on the new language items with the help of the blackboard and exercise books.
- (c) Read the passage aloud and allow children to listen. Then let them read the lesson SILENTLY. Test comprehension through questioning.
- (d) PREPARE the children for the language exercises that follow. The Handbook describes how to do this ORALLY.

It is therefore absolutely necessary that you use the Teacher's Handbook and follow the instructions closely.

Teaching of poems, Supplementary Readers and compositions should be planned as suggested in the Handbook.

The word list appended to the Reader will tell you the lesson in which a word occurs for the first time.

By education, I mean an all-round drawing of the best in men i.e. body, mind and spirit.

—Mahatma Gandhi

OUR NATIONAL SYMBOLS

(Suja, Anandhi and Latha are in the same class.
One evening Anandhi visits Latha)

Latha: Hello Anandhi! Where is Suja? Isn't she coming?

Anandhi: I didn't see her this morning. I saw her in her house yesterday evening. She is going to sing "Janaganamana" in the school function.

Latha: Oh! I see. Is she preparing for the school function?

Anandhi: Yes. Our teacher asked her to practise it well. She is going to sing it alone on the platform at the end of the meeting.

Latha: Look! There comes Suja.

Suja: Hello Latha! Hello Anandhi! How are you?

Anandhi & Latha: Fine, thank you. How are you?

Suja: Oh, fine!

Latha: Why are your eyes red? Did you read all night?

Suja: No. Yesterday evening I saw a film.

Anandhi: What was it about?

Suja: It was about our Republic Day.

Latha: Will you please tell us all about it?

Suja: Yes, with pleasure. Let us sit down.

(All of them sit)

Suja: The film was on the Republic Day parade held in Delhi on 26 January. People from different parts of India participated in the function.

Anandhi: Are the people of different parts alike?

Suja: No. They aren't. They speak different languages. They dress differently. They eat different kinds of food. They have different habits and customs. But we feel we are one. We belong to one nation. We love everything in our country. We love and honour our national symbols.

Anandhi: What are the symbols?

Suja: The Ashoka Pillar is one and the National Flag is another.

Latha: I find the Ashoka Pillar in our rupee notes.

Suja: Yes. You are right. It is our National Emblem. It is the symbol of our government.

Anandhi: What does it show?

Suja: It is a symbol of peace and love. Ashoka, the Great, wanted every Indian to love others. We follow this. He erected a pillar at Saranath.

Latha: We also speak of the Ashoka Chakra. Our National Flag has it at the centre.

Suja: It is the wheel of Dharma. There are 24 spokes in the wheel and the small circle connects these spokes. It symbolizes the unity of the people.

Anandhi: Well. What did the President say to our country?

Suja: He asked us to be united and fight poverty and illiteracy. He also spoke of our flag.

Latha: What did he say about our flag?

Suja: He pointed to the colours and explained them. Our flag has three colours. Saffron stands for sacrifice and a strong mind, white for purity, love and peace and green for plenty and joy.

Anandhi: We salute our flag when we hoist it, don't we?

Latha: Yes. We are ready to make sacrifices for our country, aren't we?

Suja: Yes. The President said we want peace and progress. He asked us to be pure. I also saw the other symbols in the film.

Anandhi: What are they?

Suaj: I saw a tiger walking boldly. It stands for strength and majesty.

Latha: I want to be strong like a tiger.

Suja: The tiger is our National Animal and the peacock is our National Bird.

Anandhi: Yes. I remember. Our teacher showed us a picture of a peacock.

Latha: The peacock is a very beautiful bird.

Suja: It stands for beauty.

Anandhi: Did you see any other thing?

Suja: Yes. I saw a lotus too. It is our National Flower.

Anandhi: The lotus stands for wisdom.

Latha: Goddess Saraswathi sits on this flower.

Suja: Yes. When we see this, we think of knowledge and wisdom.

Anandhi: What do these symbols stand for?

Suja: They stand for our love towards animals, birds and the vegetation of our country.

Anandhi: Thus we love our country.

Latha: What did the President give the participants?

Suja: He gave them beautiful prizes and certificates.

Anandhi: I'm going to ask my mother to take me to that film.

Latha: Good. I'll also come with you.

Suja: It's time. Let us go home.

Latha & Anandhi: Good-bye!

Suja: Good-bye!

AN AEROPLANE SPEAKS

Ravi, Raju and Sheela are playmates. One day Ravi and Sheela went to Raju's house. Raju said, "Hello friends! I was waiting for you. What game shall we play today?" Ravi had a toy aeroplane in his hand. Suddenly he threw it up. It flew in the air for some time. Then it glided down. As it was gliding it hit Raju on the forehead. He closed his eyes and sat down.

The aeroplane began to talk to him.

"I was born in Bangalore. My body is green and yellow. There is a red light near my nose. I have a fan at my nose. Children can play with me."

"How do you fly?" asked Raju.

"Oh! That is simple. I am very light. Here is the key. You can wind this. The fan turns fast and I go up."

"Why do you make a noise? It frightens me."

"The fan turns very fast. It cuts the air. My body is light and as I glide there is a noise. Don't you hear motor cars?"

"Yes. I am not afraid of them. But you fly within my house with a loud noise."

"I was in a shop last week. Ravi's father bought me. I came to your house with Ravi. You all play with me."

"Of course, we play. But I was not playing with you a minute ago. Still you hit me."

"Ravi was holding me. He wound the key and let me go. I flew up and after some time I came down. You were there. Sorry. But I help you in many ways."

"How do you help us? Please tell me."

"I am very small. But I have brothers. They are big. They carry things and people. They fly fast. People use aeroplanes in many ways."

"What food do you eat?"

"Eat? We don't eat. We drink petrol. We fly long distances, and"

"And what?"

"And we carry letters too."

"I see. My uncle wrote a letter last Friday. I got it on Saturday."

"Yes. My brother carried the letter for you."

At that time Ravi came there with a glass of water. Sheela sprinkled some water on Raju's face. Raju slowly opened his eyes and said, "Thank you. We are all friends then."

Sheela smiled and asked Raju, "What are you saying? Are you dreaming?"

Raju said, "I was talking to my friend, the aeroplane." The aeroplane was on the floor. All of them laughed.

THE YOUNG FRUIT SELLER

Easwar Chandra Vidhyasagar was a great man. He loved the poor and helped them in many ways. He lived in Bengal. Here is an interesting story about him.

One day Vidhyasagar was walking along a street in Calcutta. A poor boy came to him and said, "Sir, I have no parents. I have no money. Please give me one rupee, Sir."

The boy was in rags. But his face was cheerful. Vidhyasagar took pity on him. He asked him, "What will you do with one rupee?"

The boy replied, "I shall buy and eat something."

Vidhyasagar asked, "What will you do if I give you two rupees?" The boy replied, "Sir, I shall buy something for one rupee and eat it today. I shall keep the other rupee for tomorrow."

Vidhyasagar continued, "If I give you five rupees, what will you do?" The boy hesitated for some time. Then he replied, "If you give me five rupees, I shall buy some fruit and sell it. I shall live on the profit and use the five rupees once again tomorrow."

Vidhyasagar was very pleased with the boy. He was also happy to hear this reply from him. He thought, "This boy will be a merchant one day." Then he gave him ten rupees.

The boy thanked him heartily and ran quickly towards the market. He bought and sold fruit. After a few years he became a big merchant. Even today you can see a fruit shop in Calcutta with the name "VIDHYASAGAR FRUIT SHOP".

(Poem)

GIRLS AND BOYS COME OUT TO PLAY

Girls and boys come out to play,
The moon is shining as bright as day;
Leave your supper and leave your sleep
And join your play-fellows in the street.
Come with a jump and come with a call,
Come with a goodwill or not at all.
Up the ladder and down the wall,
A halfpenny loaf will serve us all;
You find milk, and I'll find flour,
And we'll have a pudding in half an hour.

LAUGH AT MISFORTUNE

Three hundred years ago, there lived a king in Khoraseu. He had a thousand camels and a lot of gold and silver. He had a son. The prince, Amir, often visited other places. Whenever he went out, a caravan of 500 camels went with him. 300 of them carried his pots, pans and provisions.

Once Amir was going to a neighbouring city. A lot of camels were travelling with him. On the way he met his enemy, Caliph Ismail. There was a fight between them and the Caliph defeated Amir and made him his prisoner.

The next morning Amir was hungry. He wanted to have something for breakfast. Bakr, his cook, was standing near him.

"Bakr," he said, "I am hungry. Could you please cook something for me?"

"I will try, Your Majesty," replied Bakr. He went to the kitchen. There wasn't anything in the pots. All of them were empty. There was only one pot with something inside. Bakr took it and turned it upside down. Something fell down from the pot and it began to run. It was only a small mouse.

All the other pots with provisions were with the Caliph. So Bakr went out to find something to cook. He found a piece of meat. He put the meat in the pot and placed it in a corner. Then he went out to the garden to look for vegetables.

In the meantime a dog came there. It smelt the meat. It came to the kitchen and put its head into the pot. The mouth of the pot was small and the dog's head got stuck into it. It could not take its head out. It began to run with its head in the pot.

Amir saw the dog and laughed. His friends asked him, "The dog is running away with your dinner. Why are you laughing?"

Amir replied, "I am laughing at myself. Yesterday I was a rich man. 300 camels carried my pots and provisions. Today I have nothing. Now I am a poor man and a prisoner. One dog can take away all my provisions."

Amir laughed at his misfortune. Can you laugh at your misfortune?

THE VALUE OF KINDNESS

Long ago there was a rich landlord in Sorkalpuri. His name was Prabhu. He owned a lot of villages and many acres of wet land. He lived in a big bungalow. He was hard-hearted and had no pity for the poor.

Every day he ate rich food and he grew fat day by day. His wife and daughters had fine clothes and a lot of jewels. They were made of gold and diamonds.

The poor people in the villages paid Prabhu a lot of money every year as tax. There was very good furniture in his bungalow. But it was not a happy place. Prabhu often shouted at his wife, children and servants. He was unkind to them.

Prabhu had a manager. His name was Vasu. This manager looked after the rich man's property. One day Prabhu called Vasu and said, "Go to the village and bring me my money."

"Sir," answered Vasu, "the people are poor. The harvest is bad this year."

"I don't care about it," said Prabhu. "Go and collect the dues somehow."

Vasu hesitated for some time. He stood there for a moment and then said, "Sir, you have enough money already. What are you going to do with more money? Please tell me."

Prabhu shouted, "I don't want to answer you. Do your duty."

Vasu went to the village. All the people came to him. Vasu noticed their poor condition. They showed him their hands. They were rough and dirty. All the children were in rags. He pitied them and said, "My master feels sorry for you. He is full of pity for you. The harvest has been poor this year. He has allowed you to keep your taxes."

All the people were full of joy. They shouted in joy. They thanked Vasu and Prabhu.

Vasu came back to Prabhu. His master asked, "Vasu, how much have you brought me?"

Vasu said, "You are unkind to everyone. No one loves you. You need a little love and affection. I have spent your money on getting this for you. I have given your money to them."

At this Prabhu got angry. "Go away," he said. "I will not listen to your words. You've not been faithful to me and you are not my manager any longer. Get away, you dirty goose."

Some time later Prabhu himself went to the village. The villagers ran to welcome him. They brought him flowers and fruit. They shouted in joy and danced round him.

Prabhu felt very surprised. His people never liked him. Now they told him he was very good and kind. They thanked him again and again. Now Prabhu began to feel happy. He was not hard-hearted any longer. He smiled at them and laughed with them. He understood that a little kindness brings us pleasure and happiness. He didn't understand this before.

So he came back to the town and called back Vasu.

"You are my manager. You have shown me the right way. Be with me once again."

Vasu was very happy. The villagers were happy too.

ID-UL-FITR

Rajan and Rahim were walking along the road one day. They were in the same class. Rajan asked Rahim, "Tomorrow is your festival. What festival is it? What will you do tomorrow?"

Rahim said, "We celebrate some important festivals like Bakrid, Id-ul-Fitr, and Meelad-un-Nabi. Tomorrow is Id-ul-Fitr. What are your important festivals, Rajan? Which of your festivals do you celebrate on a no moon day?"

Rajan: We celebrate Deepavali and Pongal. Deepavali is on the day before no moon day in October-November. Now tell me something about Id ul-Fitr.

Rahim: Id-ul-Fitr is a very important day. It comes after the month of Ramzan. Muslims spend Ramzan in fasting and prayer.

Rajan: How do you count your months?

Rahim: We follow the path of the moon. With every new moon day we begin a new month. With the new moon in Ramzan we begin fasting and the next new moon day marks the end of Ramzan.

"Can you tell me more about this?" asked Rajan.

"I'm sorry. But my father knows a lot about this. Will you please come to my house and meet my father?" asked Rahim. Both of them went to Rahim's house. There were two people sitting in front of the house. "Which of these is your father?" asked Rajan. Rahim introduced Rajan to his father. "This is my friend Rajan. He is interested in knowing about our festivals."

Rajan: Good morning, Sir. Rahim told me about the festivals you celebrate. Please tell me more about Id-ul-Fitr.

Rahim's father was very old. He spoke in a low voice. He said, "We fast in the month of Ramzan and all boys and girls and grown-ups are eager to see the new moon at the end of the month. The first day after the new moon day is the day of Id-ul-Fitr. Most of the Muslims gather in the streets at twilight and look towards the western sky. The excitement begins when people see the new moon. As soon as the new moon appears in the sky a great boom is heard. It is the cannon shot. This announces the sighting of the moon, the end of Ramzan and the beginning of Id.”

Rahim: The next day (Id-ul-Fitr) we wear new clothes and go to the mosque for prayers.

Rahim's father: Before we go for prayers every Muslim gives alms to the poor. From the tower the Muezzin calls the Muslims for special prayers. The prayer is long and all the people say the prayers.

After the prayers a Pandit (Moulvi) addresses the muslims. He recites some verses from the Quoran, and explains their meaning to the people. After the prayers the people greet each other, visit friends and relatives and have feast in the afternoon.

Rajan: What do people do after the feast?

Rahim's father: They are free to go out with friends and relatives and enjoy themselves. This is how we celebrate Id.

Rajan thanked him, took leave of Rahim and then returned home.

Exercises

I. Answer the following:

1. Which Hindu festival comes on the day before no moon day?
2. Which Muslim festival follows the month of Ramzan?

THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA

Have you read about Columbus, the adventurer from Genoa? Probably you have.

Columbus loved the sea. Even before he was ten years old he wanted to be a sailor. In 1492 when he was 41 years old he sailed from Spain.

Columbus had a bold plan. "I have read about India," he thought. "But I have not been there even once. If I sail westwards, I'll be there in a month." But that was a difficult voyage. His wooden ships were not strong. They were helpless against the storms. The men Columbus took with him were not courageous. They were cowards. Food was another difficulty. They could not store the corn, fruit and meat they wanted for the long voyage.

Columbus and his men sailed westwards for days and weeks. Unfortunately they saw no land. Their fears grew. They were also homesick.

"We can't sail on," the sailors said. "Columbus is mad. Let's go back to Spain. Let him go in search of India all by himself."

Columbus did not worry. "You call yourselves sailors and you can't sail!" he said. "Give me three days more. If we do not see land on the fourth day we'll return."

Columbus and his men were lucky. On the third day they sighted land. "Our Captain is right, isn't he?" said his men in surprise.

They went ashore on the strange island. The island was green with grass and trees. The people they saw were at first afraid of the visitors. But when Columbus and his men showed them the gifts, they ran straight to them. They even entertained them with songs and dances.

The people Columbus met were not Indians.

The land he discovered was not India.

It was America. The people were Red Indians. We are thankful to Columbus and his men for the new world.

Exercises

I. Answer the following questions:

1. Who was Columbus?

LATHA GETS A LETTER

Hotel Palace,
49, VIII Cross Road,
Srinagar -190003

13 October 1980

My dear Latha,

Thank you very much for your letter. I got it yesterday in Delhi. I came to Srinagar only this morning. My journey was quite comfortable. This place is very pleasant. It is the capital of Kashmir.

You've asked me to write to you about Kashmir. I am just settling down. I went to the Dal Lake this afternoon. It is a famous lake in Srinagar. It is very large and there are hundreds of houseboats and float gardens on it. It is really interesting to see them floating. People here use waterways as streets.

There is another famous lake in Srinagar — the Nagin. One can water-ski as well as swim in the lake. There is a lot of water in the lake and there are plenty of fish too, mainly, carp. I saw a number of boys and girls pony trekking on the mountains. I haven't seen the Shalimar Gardens yet.

The centre of Kashmir is a rich green valley. It is eighty kilometres across and is surrounded by rich mountain ranges going up to 4,500 metres or more. Even in summer there is snow on many of the peaks. It is no wonder thousands of people come here during holidays and enjoy the beauties of nature.

Tomorrow I'll go to the supermarket here. My hotel manager says saffron is cheap only there. You know saffron is a rare plant and it grows only in Kashmir. I'll send you a packet. You and your mother can take it with milk.

You've asked me to get you a shawl. Your sister also will need one. Shawls produced here are famous. I'll buy a few embroidered shawls for you. This is my present for your birthday next month.

I shall write to you next week after visiting other places. Write to the address above.

Wish you a happy Diwali!

Yours lovingly,
NAGESH

And soft and grey;
I paddled in it
Yesterday.

The stream, the pool,
The hills so tall,
I love them all.

GANDHIJI'S LITTLE PENCIL

Mr Ramesh, the English teacher, entered the class. He saw Prasath throwing something out of the window. "What are you throwing away, Prasath?" asked Mr Ramesh.

"Nothing, Sir. A small pencil.

" Whose is it?"

" It's mine, Sir. It is very small I can't use it.

"I see. Please go out and bring it," said the teacher.

Prasath brought the pencil to the teacher. He examined it and said, "Prasath, you can still use this pencil. It is not good to throw away things like this. I shall tell you an incident from Gandhiji's life."

"We call him the Father of the Nation. He got us freedom. He was very careful even with little things.

"One day Gandhiji was searching for something on his desk. It was time for a congress meeting. Kaka Sahib Kalelkar was one of Gandhiji's disciples. He was watching this. He went near Bapuji.

"What is the matter? What are you looking for?" he asked.

"I've lost my pencil," Bapuji replied. "It was a very small pencil."

Kaka Sahib didn't understand him. "Why does Gandhiji worry over a small pencil?" he thought. "He is wasting his time and also mine."

He took out his long pencil and offered it to Gandhiji.

"No, no. I want my own little pencil," Gandhiji insisted like a small child.

"Well, use it for the time being," said Kaka Sahib. "I'll find your pencil later. Don't waste time."

"No, that is not mine. You don't understand. That little pencil is very precious to me," Gandhiji insisted. "Natesan's little son gave it to me in Madras. He gave it with so much love and affection. I cannot bear to lose it."

Kaka Sahib didn't argue any more. He joined Gandhiji in the search. At last they found it — a tiny pencil, hardly two inches long. But Gandhiji was now happy. To him, it was no ordinary pencil.

It was the token of a child's love and to Gandhiji a child's love was very precious.

Once Gandhiji remarked, "At times even a dead snake can be useful," and he related the following story.

Once a snake entered the house of a poor old woman. She cried out for help. The villagers rushed in and killed the snake. Then they returned to their houses. The old woman threw the dead snake on her roof.

Some time later a kite saw the dead snake. The kite had a pearl necklace in its beak. It dropped the necklace on the roof and flew away with the dead snake. When the old woman saw a bright shining object on her roof, she pulled it down with a pole. She saw the necklace and was very happy.

"So, children, don't be careless even with little things."

TWO GREAT PAINTERS

Varma was a great painter. Once he painted a picture of fruits and flowers. Many people saw the picture. They thought the fruits and flowers were real.

Some time later he painted another picture. It was a bunch of grapes. They looked natural. Birds flew into his room and pecked at the grapes. He showed this picture to a lot of people. All of them praised him and said, "You are a wonderful painter!" Varma became very proud. He said to himself, "I am the best painter in the world. None can paint like me!"

There was another painter in the same town. His name was Ravi. He was a good painter too. He heard what Varma said. He smiled and said to himself, "I will paint a special picture and show it to Varma."

So he painted a picture of a handsome boy. The boy was standing behind a curtain. It was a net curtain. It looked real. One day he invited Varma to his house and showed him his painting. Varma looked at the painting and said, "Ravi, please pull the curtain. I can see the boy better then." Ravi laughed and said, "My dear friend, this is not a real curtain. I have painted it." Varma went near it, touched the curtain and hung his head in shame.

"You paint very well," he said. "Some birds mistook my grapes for real ones. But I, a painter, mistook your curtain for a real one. Now I have learnt a lesson. I will not be proud again."

After some time Varma painted a picture of a boy holding a bunch of grapes in his hand. A few birds flew down and tried to peck at the fruit. Varma saw this and became sad. Ravi asked him why he was sad. He said, "Your grapes look real! Birds are pecking at them."

"Yes," answered Varma. "Birds are afraid of real boys but they are not afraid of the boy in the picture!"

Exercises

I. Answer the following questions in one or two sentences each:

1. What did Varma paint first?
2. Why did birds peck at the grapes?
3. Varma said, "I am the best painter in the world. None can paint like me!" Why did he say this?
4. Varma hung his head in shame. Why?

5. Who taught Varma a lesson?
6. Were birds afraid of the boy in the picture? Why?

II. Change the following sentences as shown in the example:

Example: Ravi asked Varma, "Why are you sad?"

Ravi asked Varma why he was sad.

Kumar said, "I am going to Madras tomorrow."

Kumar told me where he was going.

1. Kannan asked his brother, "Why are you crying?"
2. My teacher asked me, "Why are you late today?"
3. Mr Singh asked his son, "How many marks did you get in English in the examination?"
4. Peter said to his mother, "I am going to the playground."
5. I said to the shopkeeper, "I want six oranges."

III. Match the following properly:

(a) painter	one who makes pots
cobbler	one who weaves cloth
potter	one who drives a car or lorry
weaver	one who mends shoes
driver	one who paints
baker	one who makes plans
engineer	one who bakes bread

(b) real	pride
proud	in front of

shame	happy
special	unreal
behind	humble
sad	ordinary

- (c) a bunch of cattle
a flock of bees
a herd of ships
a swarm of bananas
a fleet of sheep

IV. Use the following words in your own sentences:

pecked, wonderful, handsome, real, mistook, curtain, proud

ABOUT SENDING LETTERS

(Sukumar and Kumar are friends. They study in the same class. Kumar is from a remote village and he stays in the school hostel. One evening Sukumar goes to the hostel to see Kumar. Kumar is writing something.)

Sukumar: Hello, Kumar! Good evening. Are you busy?

Kumar: Oh, no. I am writing a letter to my father. Do you have a pen? My pen is leaky.

Sukumar: Oh, yes. Here it is.

Kumar: It's very beautiful. Whose is it?

Sukumar: It's my father's. He gave it to me as a present. Whose is it you are writing with?

Kumar: It's mine. You know, my father will send me money after seeing this letter. Then I will buy a new pen. Now will you please come with me to post this letter?

Sukumar: Oh, sure. (Both of them go to the post-box across the road. They see a man opening the box.)

Kumar: Mr Postman, excuse me. Please help me. I want you to take this letter also.

Postman: Oh, yes.

Sukumar: Thank you. (Looking at the bag) It is very big and thick! Whose is it? Is it yours?

Postman: No, not mine. It is a post-bag. We carry all the letters in this bag only.

Kumar: Are you going to deliver them now?

Postman: No, I am taking them to the post office.

Kumar: I see. Will you please tell me when my letter will reach my father?

Postman: In one or two days. What is the day today?

Sukumar: Monday.

Postman: Your letter will reach your father on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Kumar: What happens to those letters when you take them to the post office? We want you to explain this.

Postman: We stamp and sort them out. We send them to their respective places by buses, trains and aeroplanes. The postmen in different places collect them and deliver them to the addressees.

Kumar: I haven't seen a post office yet.

Postman: Haven't you?

Kumar: Have you seen a post office, Sukumar?

Sukumar: Yes, I have.

Postman: What have you seen there?

Sukumar: I have seen the people doing various jobs - sorting them out, putting them in bags, loading the letters in a van and so on.

Postman: Good. We do something more. We send telegrams. And we have telephones too. Have you ever used a telephone?

Kumar & Sukumar: (together) No, we haven't.

Postman: It is very simple. Come to the post office tomorrow. I'll explain to you the whole thing. You can speak to anyone in any part of India.

Sukumar: How much have we to pay for it?

Postman: It varies according to the distance and , time.

Kumar: I receive money from my father every month. How do we send money by post?

Postman: We have a separate form for money order. Your father fills in the form and pays the money at a post office. It reaches you safely through a postman. He gets your signature and gives you the money. Sometimes we attach a card to the letter. It comes back to the sender with the signature of the addressee. We call it the acknowledgement form.

Sukumar: Thank you very much, Mr Postman. You have clarified most of our doubts. Hasn't he, Kumar?

Kumar: Yes. Thank you. We will come to the post office tomorrow after 4 o'clock. Good-bye.

Postman: Good-bye.

telling the time.

VISITING THE BLIND

I am Vasantha. I am twelve. I am in the sixth standard. One day our teacher took us to a special school for the blind. It was five minutes to ten when we reached the school.

As we entered the office, the Headmaster, Mr Mohandoss, greeted us with a vanakkam.

All of us assembled in the hall. Mr Mohandoss said, "I welcome you all to our school. Children here can't see. But they learn. How do the blind learn? I will show you everything." He spoke to us for a short time and then took us around.

First of all we visited the music room. Children were sitting side by side. They were playing the harmonium, the tabla and the flute.

"How well they play!" exclaimed David. All of us enjoyed the music. "These boys are good at music. Sometimes they play music in a public park or at a party. On such occasions they learn something about the world," said Mr Mohandoss.

"Now let us go to the next room," said the Headmaster. Some boys were weaving cloth there. In another room some boys were learning cane work and some others were stitching clothes on sewing machines. "What do you do with the things made here?" asked our teacher. "We sell them in the market. We also sell them to government offices," replied Mr Mohandoss.

In another room some boys were sitting with big brown books in front of them. "Sir, what are those boys doing with the books?" asked Karim.

The Headmaster said, "Those boys are reading. Of course, the blind cannot read the same way as we do. But they use BRAILLE letters and read. You find dots pricked on those pages. The boys touch those raised dots. They move their fingers on the raised letters and read. This is a special method.

"How wonderful!" said Ramesh. "I never knew that blind boys can also read!"

"Blindness is an unfortunate thing. But here we teach the blind to help themselves. People can help them too. They can employ the blind and also buy the things they make," said our teacher.

We came back to our school at 5 minutes to one. Our class teacher said, "You are young now. God has given you eyes to see, ears to hear and limbs to move about. But there are some people without eyes. Some cannot hear properly. Some do not have hands or legs. Yet they live in this world, laugh, sing and dream. Let us help them by all means, at all times, and in all possible ways. Let us make the handicapped look brighter and forget their loss. This is our duty to them."

All the boys and girls said, "We will help them."

We said, "Thank you very much," and then returned home.

Exercises

I. Answer the following:

1. What kind of a school did Vasantha and others visit one day?
2. Who greeted them there?

OLYMPIC GAMES

29 July 1980 was a golden day for the hockey fans of India. On this day the Indians won the hockey match in the XXII Olympic Games and got the gold medal. Bhaskaran of Tamilnadu was the captain of the team.

In the olden ages the Greek gods, Zeus and Kronos, fought a war on Mount Olympus. Zeus won the war. The Greeks held games in memory of this victory. Another Greek god, Pelops, won a chariot race. He celebrated this victory with games and religious ceremonies. He lit a fire and worshipped Zeus with a torch.

In the year 776 B. C. there was a great Stade (foot) race in Olympia. From that time we have records of the Olympic Games. We also got the word "stadium" from the Greeks. The place where we hold games is a stadium.

Later people from other countries also took part in the Olympic Games. The winners got money and gifts as prizes. From 1908 the winners got medals made of gold, silver and bronze. In July 1900 women also took part in the Olympics.

There is a symbol for the Olympic Games. It is a bronze disc with five rings on it. The five rings stand for the five continents. The Olympic motto is "FASTEST", "HIGHEST", and "STRONGEST".

We hold the Olympic Games once in four years. People from all over the world take part in the Olympics. They play different kinds of games. Some take part in individual races; others take part in team games like hockey. Women take part in special events. All of them play well. The important thing in games is not the winning but taking part.

We hold the Olympic Games once in four years now. Were there any in 1974? Yes, there were. But there were none in 1914, 1940 and 1944 because of the wars.

In 1928 India got the gold medal for hockey. From that year India got the gold medal for thirty-two years. In 1964 India lost it to Pakistan. Only in 1980 we got back the gold medal. We are thankful to Bhaskaran and his team for this.

Our country gave him the Arjuna award and honoured him. This is for his team work. He also got the individual Padma Shri award. The Government of Tamilnadu also gave him a house to live in free of cost.

If you practise games every day, you can also take part in the Olympic Games.

Exercises

I Say TRUE or FALSE :

1. There are six rings in the Olympic symbol
2. Men and women play alike.
3. Olympic games are held once in four years.
4. India got back the gold medal in hockey.
5. Bhaskaran was the goal keeper in the football match.

II. There are three answers for each statement. Choose the correct one.

1. Players obey the
(a) captain (b) goal keeper (c) winner
2. The rings in the Olympic symbol stand for.....
(a) games (b) continents (c) prizes
3. The Olympic Games started in
